

The Department of Biology at Bryn Mawr College invites applications for a full-time, tenure

To apply for this position, candidates should submit a curriculum vitae, a cover letter, a statement of demonstrated teaching effectiveness, a statement of demonstrated teaching philosophy that includes a syllabus, and three letters of recommendation to be submitted to the Search Committee via Interfolio at: <https://www.interfolio.com>. Applications received by September 15, 2023, will be considered.

Recognizing health and safety concerns during this time, the activities for this search will be conducted virtually/remotely.

Bryn Mawr College is a distinguished liberal arts college for women with a vibrant faculty of scholar-teachers, a talented staff and intellectually curious students eager to make a difference in the world. The College is committed to increasing the diversity of its students, faculty, staff, and curricular offerings with a particular focus on enhancing ethnic and racial diversity and advancing social justice and inclusion. We believe diversity strengthens our community and enriches the education of our students. We have a student body of 1,370 undergraduates (32 percent are U.S. students of color and 21 percent are international students). There are 330 graduate students in coeducational graduate programs in social work, humanities and science.

Bryn Mawr College is located in metropolitan Philadelphia and enjoys strong consortial relationships with Haverford College, Swarthmore College, a1 (e)4 (.d (a)-6 ou)-7 (or)aw1 (2 ()-1-2 (ude)4 ((i)- percent are U.S. students of color and 21 percent are international students). There are 330 graduate students in coeducational graduate programs in social work, humanities and science. Bryn Mawr College is located in metropolitan Philadelphia and enjoys strong consortial relationships with Haverford College, Swarthmore College, and the University of Pennsylvania. Bryn Mawr College is an equal-opportunity employer; candidates from underrepresented groups and women are especially encouraged to apply.

e

The Department of Computer Science at Bryn Mawr College invites applications for a full-time, tenure-

Bryn Mawr College is an equal-opportunity employer; candidates from underrepresented groups and women are especially encouraged to apply.

Bryn Mawr College invites applications for a Director of its new Data Science Program with the experience and vision to develop this initiative to begin on August 1, 2021. We seek to hire an accomplished scholar-teacher, at the level of Advanced Associate or Full Professor, with a deep and innovative background in the humanities or social sciences that is representative of the cross-disciplinary nature of Data Science. This individual will join and lead an existing group of faculty and staff to build a Data Science program within our liberal arts curriculum. The new Director will support faculty and student achievement in data-driven research and pedagogy, provide administrative leadership by guiding curricular development and College initiatives, and coordinate and collaborate with key constituents across campus. The Director will have a reduced teaching load to support these program development efforts. Candidates for the position must hold a Ph.D. in a humanities or social sciences discipline and have significant experience in data science as applied to their discipline. The successful candidate will also have a strong record of commitment to teaching excellence.

To apply for this position, submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of your experience in program development and your plans for building the Data Science Program at Bryn Mawr, and statement of demonstrated commitment to diversity and inclusion to Data Science Search Committee via Interfolio at: <https://apply.interfolio.com/78600>. In addition, please submit contact information including phone numbers and email addresses of three persons who can speak to your qualifications. Applications received by March 1, 2021 will receive full consideration.

Recognizing health and safety concerns during this time, the College will be as flexible as possible in determining the nature of any interviews or meetings (virtual/remote and/or in-person interaction) that are conducted for this search.

Bryn Mawr College is a distinguished liberal arts college for women with a vibrant faculty of scholar-teachers, a talented staff and intellectually curious students eager to make a difference in the world. The College is committed to increasing the diversity of its students, faculty, staff, and curricular offerings with a particular focus on enhancing ethnic and racial diversity and advancing social justice and inclusion. We believe diversity strengthens our community and enriches the education of our students. We have a student body of 1,370 undergraduates (32 percent are U.S. students of color and 21 percent are international students). There are 330 graduate students in coeducational graduate programs in social work, humanities and science. Bryn Mawr College is located in metropolitan Philadelphia and enjoys strong consortial relationships with Haverford College, Swarthmore College, and the University of Pennsylvania. Bryn Mawr College is an equal-opportunity employer; candidates from underrepresented groups and women are especially encouraged to apply.

The Department of Psychology at Bryn Mawr College invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track Assistant Professor position in clinical psychology to begin August 1, 2021. The successful candidate will be expected to teach Abnormal Psychology (at the intermediate level), lab courses and an advanced seminar in the candidate's area of expertise, and either Introductory Psychology or Research Methods and Statistics. We are looking for candidates with training in clinical psychology who have a theoretically, methodologically, and quantitatively rigorous research program that can meaningfully incorporate undergraduate students in their research. Candidates are also expected to be part of the department's efforts to develop and teach a diverse and inclusive curriculum, including contributing to college-wide initiatives such as the 360 Program and the Emily Balch Seminars. Candidates must have completed all Ph.D. requirements by the start date, and postdoctoral experience is desirable.

To apply for this position, candidates must submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, teaching philosophy, research statement, and statement of demonstrated commitment to diversity and inclusion to the Psychology Department Search Committee via Interfolio at: <https://apply.interfolio.com/77823>. In addition, please arrange for three letters of recommendation to be submitted via Interfolio to the Psychology Department Search Committee. Applications received by December 1, 2020 will receive full consideration.

Recognizing health and safety concerns during this time, the College will be as flexible as possible in determining the nature of any interviews or meetings (virtual/remote and/or in-person interaction) that are conducted for this search.

Bryn Mawr College is a distinguished liberal arts college for women with a vibrant faculty of scholar-teachers, a talented staff and intellectually curious students eager to make a difference in the world. The College is committed to increasing the diversity of its students, faculty, staff, and curricular offerings with a particular focus on enhancing ethnic and racial diversity and advancing social justice and inclusion. We believe diversity strengthens our community and enriches the education of our students. We have a student body of 1,370 undergraduates (32 percent are U.S. students of color and 21 percent are international students). There are 330 graduate students in coeducational graduate programs in social work, humanities and science. Bryn Mawr College is located in metropolitan Philadelphia and enjoys strong consortial relationships with Haverford College, Swarthmore College, and the University of Pennsylvania. Bryn Mawr College is an equal-opportunity employer; candidates from underrepresented groups and women are especially encouraged to apply.

The Graduate School of Social Work and Social Research (GSSWSR) at Bryn Mawr College invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track Assistant Professor position to start August 1, 2021. We seek a scholar interested in the connection between theory, practice and policy. Research, practice and teaching interests should also substantively engage issues of social identity, intersectionality, and structural inequality and inequity. We hope this colleague will also contribute to additional GSSWSR programs, such as initiatives in Trauma Informed Social Work, the Center for Child and Family Wellbeing, and interdisciplinary undergraduate programs in areas

The Department of Sociology at Bryn Mawr College invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track Assistant Professor position in the sociology of race to begin August 1, 2021. The successful candidate will be expected to be part of developing and teaching a diverse and inclusive curriculum, including contributing to College-wide initiatives such as the 360 Program and the Emily Balch Seminars. We are searching for a colleague specializing in race, with research and teaching expertise in the African American experience and also an international area focus in Africa, the Caribbean, and/or other areas contributing to the Bryn Mawr College program in Africana Studies. Secondary fields focus on processes of marginalization, deviance, law, and criminalization/punishment/mass incarceration. Candidates must have completed all Ph.D. requirements by the start date.

To apply for this position, candidates must submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, teaching philosophy, research statement, and statement of demonstrated commitment to diversity and inclusion to Sociology Search Committee via Interfolio at: <https://apply.interfolio.com/77699>. In addition, arrange for three letters of recommendation to be submitted via Interfolio to the Sociology Search Committee. Applications received by October 2, 2020 will receive full consideration.

Recognizing health and safety concerns during this time, the College will be as flexible as possible in determining the nature of any interviews or meetings (virtual/remote and/or in-person interaction) that are conducted for this search.

Bryn Mawr College is a distinguished liberal arts college for women with a vibrant faculty of scholar-teachers, a talented staff and intellectually curious students eager to make a difference in the world. The College is committed to increasing the diversity of its students, faculty, staff, and curricular offerings with a particular focus on enhancing ethnic and racial diversity and advancing social justice and inclusion. We believe diversity strengthens our community and enriches the education of our students. We have a student body of 1,370 undergraduates (32 percent are U.S. students of color and 21 percent are international students). There are 330 graduate students in coeducational graduate programs in social work, humanities and science. Bryn Mawr College is located in metropolitan Philadelphia and enjoys strong consortial relationships with Haverford College, Swarthmore College, and the University of Pennsylvania. Bryn Mawr College is an equal-opportunity employer; candidates from underrepresented groups and women are especially encouraged to apply.